ERASMUS HALL HIGH SCHOOL

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

ERASMUS

*Erect he stands, with scholarly mien:
Wise, with quiet dignity . . .
His eyes beheld the present;
His hopes, the future . . .
Fitting inspiration to virgin youth.*

The Curtain Descends

The curtain descends:

And we stand under the Flatbush Arch watching the trees sway with the wind. From the tower above come young voices raised in 'Auld Lang Syne' . . . and we can not help but recall memories . . .

High school has been our greatest adventure from the time when as Freshmen we searched vainly for Studio D—or attended our first Chapel and tried to sing the Erasmus Hall Hymn. We recall the battle against the bell during Quiet Period while completing our homework—the sore throats after a victorious ball game—dodging the eyes of the arch patrol—the consultations with our grade adviser concerning our future—and the silent halls during regents week, echoing the weary steps of the students.

After four years we emerge men and women, no longer sheltered from the problems of the world.

The curtain rises:

We have transversed into a new world and built new dreams based upon the wisdom that came after a seemingly endless path. We have formed everlasting friendships with students, faculty and knowledge; and it is our duty to put that knowledge to good use, when with diploma in hand we go out into the world.

DR. JOHN F. McNEILL
Principal, Erasmus Hall High School

To the Class of January 1950

Congratulations upon the successful completion of your high school course and best wishes for continued success in whatever you undertake in the many years ahead. Your teachers hope that Erasmus Hall has stimulated your minds, broadened your vision, helped you develop habits of industry and diligence, and opened your eyes to the importance of the individual in the social scheme. May the future be a rich fulfillment of the promise you have shown here.

It is easy to be pessimistic in a world characterized by international tension and suspicion and by internal bickering and squabbling. To the strong in mind, heart, and character, however, present conditions are but a challenge that presents an opportunity to you, the new generation. The modern young man and the modern young woman will not be depressed by the faults and failures of mankind but will see in those very failures problems that you can and will solve. The fair-minded, too, will see about us abundant examples of how we are overcoming weakness, prejudice, and injustice and how we are opening wider the doors of opportunity to all.

Erasmus Hall has from its beginning stressed the importance of the individual. The object of the old Academy was to "educate youth on a liberal plan and to frame their manners upon the principles of virtue and politeness." In beginning his work as principal, Dr. Walter Balfour Gunnison outlined the purpose of the modern Erasmus Hall in these words: "Erasmus Hall shall stand, so far as in me lies, for sound scholarship, for general culture and refinement, and for that character that shall be self-reliant and manly." That ideal has persisted, and it will continue, I feel sure, into the future. And the troubles and problems of our day will be met adequately only if all of us feel that personal responsibility and grow in mind and character of the finest and highest type. It is the earnest prayer of your teachers that their efforts in some small degree have contributed to this development in you, the hope of America.

Heartiest greetings and best wishes to you all. May the years ahead be for each one of you full of happiness, growth, and accomplishment.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN F. McNEILL
Principal

We, the members of the Class of January 1950, sincerely dedicate this edition of the ARCH to our Grade Adviser, Miss Florence Denholm; and to those who have guided us with wisdom, friendliness, and understanding to the road of future success commencing at our graduation.

To the Class of January 1950

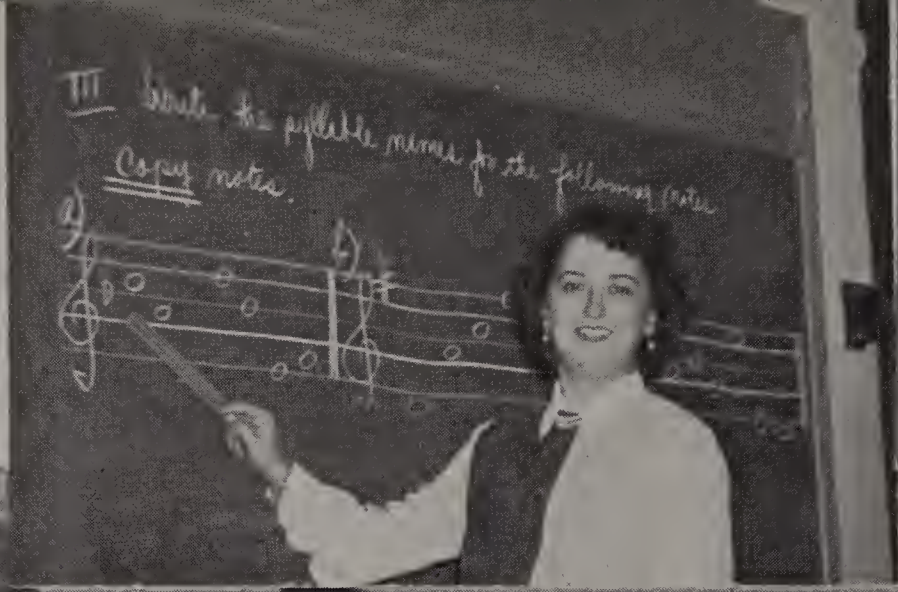

Your cruise in the realm of education was well under way when Mr. Korey's promotion left your ship without a captain and I was given command of it. The course was set. Now the port is in sight and this cruise nearly over. Soon it will be "all ashore,"—commencement,—a new beginning,—a new adventure. You will be thrown upon your own resources, to think for yourselves, to decide for yourselves, to act for yourselves, to stand alone if need be. Your success will depend largely on the habits of study and concentration already formed and practised, on the attitudes you have adopted, on the moral code to which you adhere. We have emphasized the importance of courtesy, cooperation, and dependability. I hope we have made you conscious of the fact that the rights and privileges which are your inheritance as Americans are a trust which you may enjoy only as long as you accept the responsibility for its maintenance. If, as the years go by, you fail to do your part in safeguarding this inheritance you will be contributing to the loss of these rights and privileges which now you take for granted. Let your philosophy be, "What can I contribute to the continuance of the American way of life?" rather than "What's in it for me?" No doubt you have heard it said, and with reason, "Blessed are those who expect nothing."

Now as you set out on a new cruise, look to your charts and compass, and plot your course with care. Each should set for himself some worthwhile goal and strive as best as he can to achieve it. You have my heartiest good wishes for your success. Guard your health. Weigh carefully your opportunities. Stand up to face the future unafraid, with the assurance that "all things work together for good to them that love God." The admonition of the Old Testament prophets is still wise and fitting: "Be strong and of good courage; fear not, for the Lord thy God, He it is who doth go with thee; He will not fail thee nor forsake thee."

THE PLAYBILL

For the Chapel Theater

Class of 1950 Presents:

"ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL"

Who's who in the cast

Mr. Dane—An old timer on Broadway, Mr. Dane is well remembered by his thrilled audiences in The Women, Ladies in Retirement, As the Girls Go. He will open in a new play entitled I Hate Women.

Miss Stanton—Miss Stanton shall never be forgotten for her great performances in Crime and Punishment, Trial By Jury, and Annie Get Your Gun. She will reopen in Crime and Punishment in the fall as she enjoyed doing that play very much.

Mrs. Vaughn—Seen only once before on Broadway, when she appeared in The Kid from Spain. Since then she had been acting in her native country, Peru, in Carmen.

Mrs. Dorney—This talented dancing star last seen in Look Ma I'm Dancing and Allegro. Her latest Andante will open in the fall.

"No por mucho madrugar amanece más temprano", dice un refrán español, en otras palabras, "quien va despacio va muy lejos". Su ex-maestra y amiga que le desea muchos éxitos.
E. Evangelina U. de Vaughn

Mr. Gallant—Most Broadwayites remember Mr. Gallant and his famous guitar in Oklahoma in which critics referred to him as the most talented guitar player in the country. His next play will be Me An' Mah Little Banjo, a play about Lincoln Steffens.

Mrs. Berkowsky—This fine actress has made her name on Broadway in The Circle and Squaring the Circle. Her next play will be Beyond the Horizontal.

Mr. Zimmerman—This actor is well remembered in Detective Story and the heated play Summer and Smoke involving the sale of cigarettes to minors.

Mr. Johnson—Mr. Johnson was first seen on Broadway in Charlie's Aunt, which was a tremendous success. His latest, Where's Charlie? is even funnier.

Dr. McNeill—A brilliant actor, Dr. McNeill, was first seen this season in Command Decision. Its sequel Will They All Graduate? will be presented in January.

Mr. Stratton—Mr. Stratton has just returned from a successful stay in California where the story of his life, The Stratton Story, was filmed. He will appear in January in Lend An Ear.

Dr. Wedeck—Well known entertainer of the Latin Quarter, Dr. Wedeck was last seen on Broadway in Macbeth and Brigadoon, a Scottish play about a Latin tragedy.

Mr. Murray—Critics raved about Mr. Murray's performance in Ben Johnson's The Alchemist. His next, Light Up The Sky, a new play about atomic energy.

Class of 1950—After a four year run of Having a Wonderful Time, this group will close that show and present Goodbye My Fancy in January.

Remember...

Past and Present

With apologies to Thomas Hood

I remember, I remember
The school of my four years
The early session when we
Came peeping in at dawn.
We never came a wink too late.
And rushed like mad to make the gate—
But if we didn't, woe is us.
Miss Stanton sure could raise a fuss!

I remember, I remember
The gymsuits, big and small
Green and blue and pastels, too
We looked like Autumn, and Spring and Fall.
The bell would ring—A fire drill!
"March down those steps!" (with boys to see and laugh at us)
Couldn't gymsuits be glamorous?

I remember, I remember
Erasmus football players.
Tall and fair; black and blue
While we would cheer with mighty prose—
A leg would break, and then a nose.
They were our heroes, though almost dead
Minus a tooth; minus a head.

I remember, I remember
The school of my four years.
Graduation and Senior Day
Diplomas and the tears,
We bid farewell and took our paths,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from Erasmus
Than when I was a boy.

Girls' Sports

They call me Snoop; I'm a camera, Class of January, 1950. I've been out to more sports during my four years at the Old Grey School than any other Erasmian to date. Why I can remember back when I was only a box camera. . . .

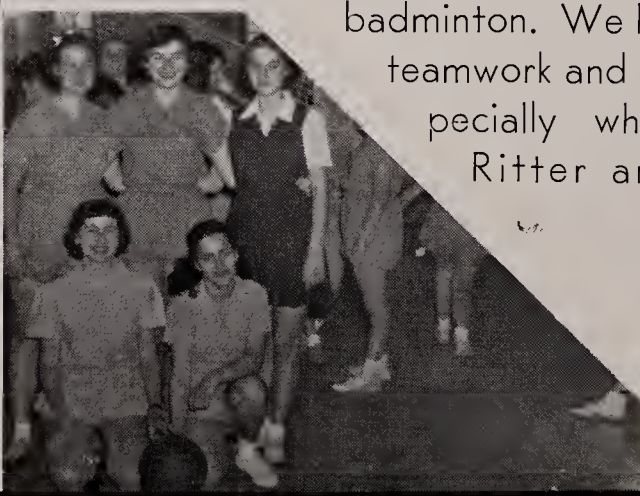

Those were the days when we as freshmen got up at the crack of dawn to play hockey. My teammates, Alice Cardona, Helen Avlonitis, Phyllis Schlags, Mary Ellen Dyer, and Carol Zeiger, were an enthusiastic group that spring in '46. They've remained ardent hockey players, and won their "E. H." in sixth term. I didn't seem to click until I was fitted for a flash—couldn't see at that hour in the morn. . . .

In third term I had begun to mature. I became a reflex camera and had quite a time trying to catch those low serves which Phyllis Schlags executed at tennis. Whenever I'd get a shot of a terrific forehand drive by Ruth Schein, it wouldn't be in focus. In the background though you would clearly see Edith Rosenthal, Ann Francevitz, Carolyn Hegarty, or Carol Zeiger searching for a thing called form.

At softball I got my first good picture. I caught Elaine Ritter catching behind Sabina Reisfeld's powerful bat. Our forte at this sport lay in the Stock twins, Lorraine and Beverly, Gladys Augarten, Teresa Sisto, and Catherine Riche. Lady Luck wasn't with us here either.

Ouch, my ground glass hurts . . . must be grow-pains again, yep, and here I am, now a miniature camera. I've found two more wonderful sports, basketball and badminton. At basketball, the big six, Heidi Vorchheimer, Sabina Reisfeld, our twins Beverly and Lorraine, Mary Ellen Dyer and Helen Avlonitis were too fast for me.

I didn't have to go for repairs until I poked my lens into badminton. We had lots of teamwork and action, especially when Elaine Ritter and Carol Zeiger led Grade VI by beating the Carolyn Hegarty, Heidi Vorchheimer duo. Again, as in most of our sports, we failed to win our letters.

My classmates really grew up when I became a press camera. Those were the days. At the bowling alleys I was chased down a long slippery runway by a big round thing which Elaine Ritter, Phyllis Schlags, Dorothy Harmon and Gloria Klein, our strike artists, assured me was nothing more than a bowling ball. For weeks afterward though my bellows were a wee bit shaky.

Almost finished my career down in the swimming pool when I braced myself on the edge of the pool to stop Carolyn Hegarty in mid-air during a dive. As she hit the water there was a tidal wave in which I nearly drowned. But I was more clever when photographing Irene Walker and Ruth Schein—I hung from the rafters and only got sprinkled.

As a climax to our years at Uncle Desi's, seven of my teammates became members of the Leaders Club, our school's athletic honor society. On January 31, 1950, these girls, Carolyn Hegarty, Elaine Ritter, Carol Zeiger, Phyllis, Lorraine Stock, Beverly Stock, and Helen Avlonitis, my other classmates and I, will be graduated from Erasmus Hall.

At last we have reached maturity, I as a press camera and they as graduates. Now we are all headed in an upward path, my friends, some as students, others in business, and me, well, I'll go to a school for cameras. It's about time I learned what to do with myself, isn't it.

CLUBS AND CLASSES

Clubs

As solemn faced Freshmen we entered our official class every day. In order to get to our official class or any other class, we sooner or later had to pass under an Arch. And when we did we couldn't escape the eternal tickets. Football tickets, dance tickets, Turkey Trot tickets, and cotton ball tickets were always there. Sooner or later we were forced into buying some tickets or other. Then since we couldn't let the money we had spent go to waste, we went to the activity and discovered to our great surprise that we really enjoyed it.

And that was how it was with clubs. Our teachers would broadcast different clubs regularly, like radio commercials. Finally we decided to go and see what those clubs really were. Those with a notion to act went to try out for Footlighters Dramatic Club or the Radio Workshop. Those that were interested in joining athletic teams went to start training. Soon clubs were so crowded it was hard to get into them. The joining of the different clubs could be compared to the rising of a curtain until it reached the top.

As Freshmen the curtain was only slightly lifted from the ground. This was because Freshmen had late hours. Only a few things were opened to them. The elementary math club was called A. B. C. The Gay Caballeros was the Spanish Club. For sports there was hockey in the morning, Saturday morning to be exact, and also tennis.

When the curtain reached its half-way mark, we were Sophomores. There were so many different teams, football and baseball, swimming and soccer, that there just had to be a cheering squad. Thus the Babs came into existence. For mathematical geniuses there was the Math Team. Some of us joined the "Y" or the Maccabees or the Newman Club. Our program was full.

The curtain rose once again. This time we were Juniors. Practically all extra curricular activities were open to us. If you liked to debate, Rostra was open to the girls and the Senate for the boys. If you were inclined to write journalistically, the Dutchman doors were open to you; if you had a flare for the short story or poetry you might try the Erasmian.

Finally, the last curtain call took place. We were seniors, and the curtain had hit the top. Senior Arista was open to Honor students. The Year Book Committee took care of graduation pictures and histories for the Year Book and the prom committee arranged and rearranged the prom.

Then it was all over and much too quickly—those wonderful clubs where so many new friends were made and where hobbies and other interests were developed. We will long remember clubs for they have left us much to remember.

Things to Come

A play in three acts presented by Erasmus Hall High School students.

Directed by The Faculty

Cast The Class of January 1950

Act I High School Life

Time: 1946-1950

Place: The grey towers of Erasmus Hall

Through the fun and laughter of high school life can be seen the serious beginning of THINGS TO COME. We have with us many budding scientists, writers, politicians, Wall Street "tycoons," entertainers, merchants, and last but not least, the infinite number of hands that will rock the cradles and rule the world.

(Curtain)

Act II Graduation

Time: January 1950

Place: Academy of Music

Long rows of buff and blue gowned graduates are seen marching to strains of "Pomp and Circumstance." Proud students exhibit their hard-won diplomas; beaming parents watch their sons and daughters receiving awards for proficiency in various subjects. For this we have been striving during the past four years; and there are many THINGS TO COME.

(Curtain)

Act III Achievement

Time: 10 years later

Place: The whole wide world

Our friends are now very evidently in the limelight. Wherever we go we can hear the much-lauded names of January 1950 graduates.

From Harvard to U.C.L.A., from Notre Dame to Miami, news of the achievement of our classmates in the field of education reaches our ears.

The pages of the Saturday Review of Literature acclaim the best sellers written by staff members of various Erasmus publications who showed promise in former years.

Cars are driven for miles on minute amounts of atomic fuel developed by the highly mechanical minds of people with whom we were graduated.

Photographs of Wall Street "tycoons" decorate the financial pages of the New York Times. We recognize these familiar faces as those of our former chums at Erasmus Hall High School.

Our graduating class now has the additional responsibility of guiding the footsteps of its children toward the higher and better things of life.

We have achieved our goal; but there can be no final curtain. Success is never-ending.

Senior

Celebs

Boys' Sports

There have been many great productions at Erasmus Hall but none have equalled those of our athletic producers. In this group of fine producers we find such famous names as Al Badain, Joe Monahan, Austin Dugan, John Caldwell, Joe Ryan, Abe Warchaiser and George Bartelt.

Act I Scene I Basketball Court—1946

Over a period of 16 years Al Badain has produced such fine basketball players that he has failed only once to bring his team into the City Championship Play-offs. The first cast that we witnessed boasted such stars as "Sparky" Smith and Ronnie Nadell. Few of us can forget how, after winning the Brooklyn Championship, this quintet battled its way down to the final game of the city championship play-offs, only to lose to a stronger Franklin High School Five by a scanty five points.

Act I Scene II—1947

Few members of the audience realized that the cast composed of the understudies of the previous season's squad would go on to win for Mr. Badain, his first City Championship. We all remember how Herb Cohn, Chuck Stewart, Al Roth, Hank Bezozo and Billy Behrens took second place to Abe Lincoln's fine squad during the regular season, only to come back for a curtain call and defeat them in the Championship play-offs. But this cast was destined to go on to bigger things after their moment of greatness.

Act I Scene III—1948

This season saw an inexperienced cast make their debut led by Captain Mickey Miller. Despite the dire predictions of the critics, these youngsters finished second to Abraham Lincoln and were eliminated in the play-offs by Thomas Jefferson High School.

Act I Scene IV—1949

At this printing the 1949-50 season is halfway through. Among the stars to be watched are co-captains Ted Elsberg and John Rucker, Eddie Lehman, Don Cramer, Harold Weitze and Larry Wilcov.

Act II Scene I—Football Field—1946-1949

Austin Dugan and Joe Monahan have had the responsibility of managing our football cast. They have produced such outstanding performers as Sandy Markowitz, Joe Fink, Walt Boeri, Leon Cohn, and Jack Boehm. Probably the outstanding cast that we have seen is this present one, consisting of Dick Sheer, Pete Manus, Bill Connors, Larry Tattenbaum, Tom Estes and Billy Byrne.

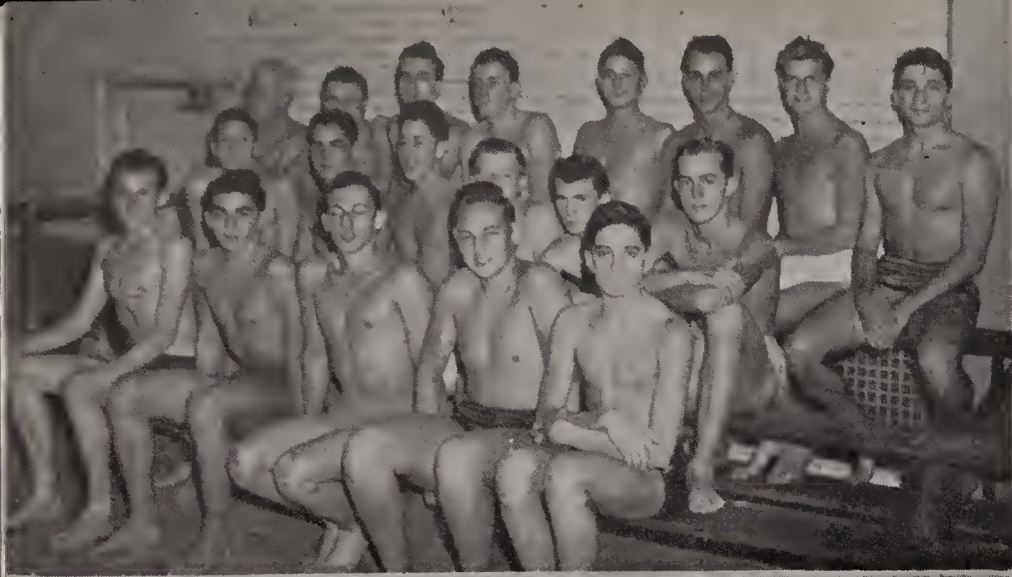

Act III Scene I—Track; Swimming Pool; Tennis Court

We have seen such track stars as Hartely Lewis, Ira Kaplan, Ronnie Berman, and Eric Kandel start their careers at Erasmus Hall.

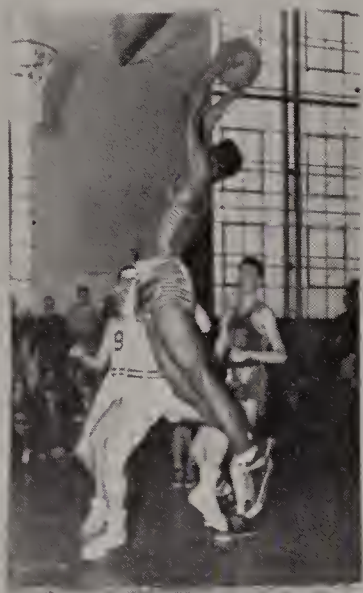

Outstanding among the swimmers were Frank Mandel and Bernie Kahn, who set a backstroke record almost every time he leaped into the water.

Last but not least is tennis. None of us can forget the exploits of Sid Schwartz, Bob Luxembourg, and Maynard Driver in their days at Erasmus Hall.

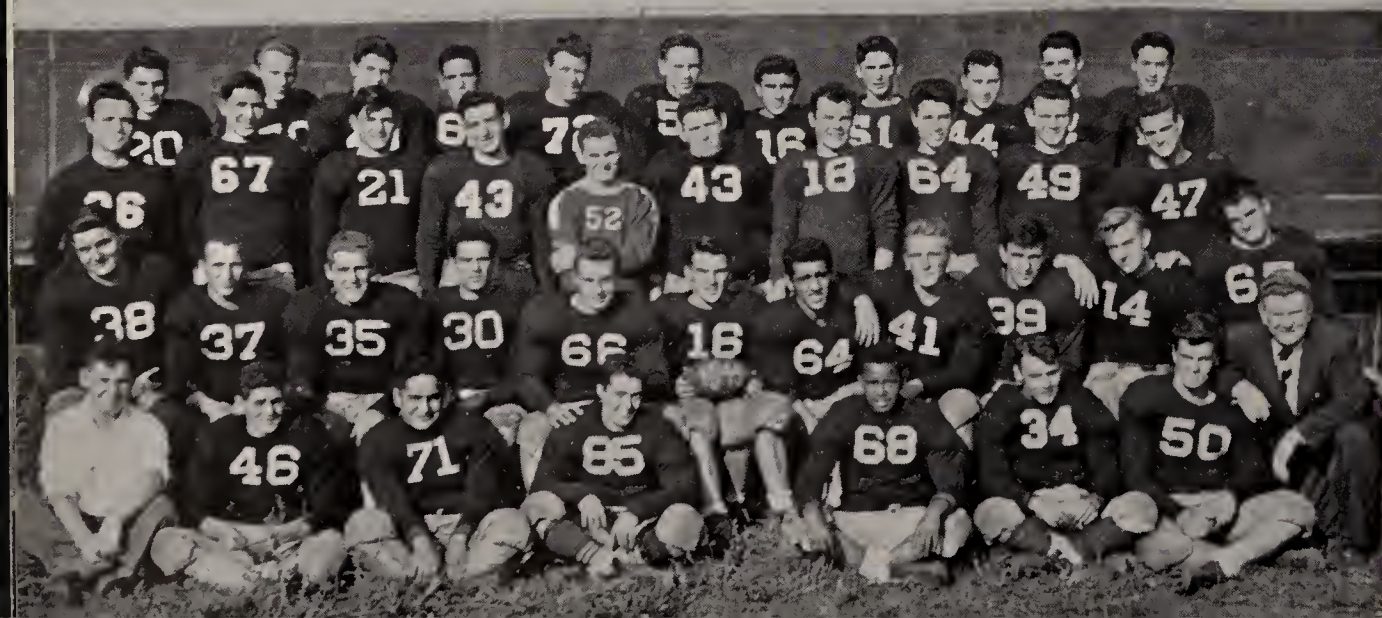

And so as the final curtain descends, we leave with one thought—the thought that our producers and our casts will carry on in the greatest of form and make their alumni proud to say, "I was an Erasmian."
